We are optimistic that during the next few months, and after the vaccination process, the situation regarding the epidemic will have improved and colleagues will be able to travel safely so we can finally meet again all together in Athens. In the unlikely situation of more epidemic restrictions, the event will be organized virtually.

News alert: It is our great pleasure to announce the tentative scientific program of the conference

The scientific program will offer delegates a wide range of innovative and interesting topics, with 11 Keynote Speakers and already more than 250 oral - poster presentations in sessions and specialized workshops.

Please keep in mind that the latest information will always be available at www.euroengeo2020.org

We are confident it will be an excellent meeting bringing together friends and colleagues after a long period of absence.

We are looking forward to welcoming all in person in Athens.
